More Students than Ever before are Graduating from the Canton Public School District

In 2005 the Canton Public School district's graduation rate was 29.7 percent. Its dropout rate was 59.8 percent. In 2006, when Dwight Luckett, Sr., became the Superintendent of the Canton Public School District, he faced a difficult task of lowering the district's dropout rate from 42.7% and raising its graduation rate from 41.8 percent. Under Luckett's leadership, the rate has increased. Today the district's graduation rate has improved to 72.2 percent. That's an increase of 40% more of its students graduating from school. The district's dropout rate has been tremendously decreased to 17.8 percent. That's 40% more students choosing to stay in school. Over the last six years, approximately 450 more students have earned their high school diploma.

This accomplishment comes after several years of constantly communicating the district’s vision, restructuring the leadership team, and refocusing the district by raising expectations. This district-wide effort by administrators and teachers coupled with better parental involvement, not only encourages students to graduate but go on to college to pursue higher degrees. As a result, in recent years, the district has observed some of its largest graduating classes in its history.

The Canton Public School District continues to work hard to overcome years of challenges to increase student achievement. Over the last several years it has made undeniable, continuous progress. As a result, last year the Mississippi Department of Education rated three of the district’s four rated schools “Successful”. School leaders say while they have made some incredible gains, they are aware the district has not reached its full potential; however, they are not discouraged. “Our district is still making progress. To move from having schools in a “school improvement status” and only one successful school to having 3 successful schools, shows that we are clearly making progress as a district. Certainly to go from having a 29.7 percent graduation rate to a 72.2% graduation rate is undeniable progress. We are definitely encouraged by our progress, says Superintendent Dwight Luckett, Sr.

CPSD	GRADUATION RATE	DROPOUT RATE	COMPLETION RATE
2005	29.7%	59.87%	30.7%
2006	41.8%	42.7%	43.0%
2012	72.2%	17.8%	79.4%

Overall our test scores have improved every year. Compared to other schools who match our demographics, we have certainly made tremendous progress. The district is analyzing data and has devised a plan of action to strengthen areas of weakness. It is committed to providing quality personnel and other resources needed to improve students' academic performance. While the district still faces many challenges, there has been steady progress. School leaders say those improvements are having a positive impact on academic achievement as school administrators and teachers work to move all of the district's schools to successful performing and above. As the district continues to intensify its efforts to meet the challenges of more rigorous state requirements, it is encouraged to stay the course until more of its students graduate and go on to pursue higher degrees.

She is continuing her education in leadership. Her focus is to provide all children with an equal opportunity to learn. She is married to Pastor Tony McBride Sr. They have 4 children: Tony Jr., Maxwell, Kimbreyell, and Mariah.

CONVOCATION

It's back to school for the Canton Public School District. Convocation Guest Speaker Alpha Myers, a Canton Educator, inspired and encouraged teachers, staff, administrators, and the school board to continue working together to achieve more success. Myers told the faculty and staff they can look around and see the countless improvements the districts has already made guided by good leadership over the last several years. She says it's up to those who are still in the trenches to keep the momentum going as they keep striving for excellence. Myers reminded the faculty and staff that test scores cannot be the only thing that defines a district, but she says it's the lives you touch, mold, and nurture that will have a lasting impact on future leaders that are inspired everyday by your dedication. Her outstanding message motivated the crowd to keep the faith, roll up their sleeves, and get back to work to improve the lives of the children they serve.

“BACK TO THE BOOKS”

Tears, smiles, and excitement filled the air as students returned for their first day of school in the Canton Public School District. Students were busy getting acclimated. Teachers organized school supplies and shared classroom rules and expectations for a successful school year. Students, donned in their beautiful uniforms, were excited to see their friends and meet their new teachers. Students say they enjoyed their summer break but now they're ready to get back to learning. Students and parents were also reminded that according to a new state law, students must attend school 63% of the day to be counted present. If students accumulate five (5) or more unexcused absences the school is required by the Mississippi Department of Education to report the absences to the school attendance officer of the youth court or family court. School leaders reminded students that attendance is very important to help them excel in their studies.
